MANHATTANVILLE COLLEGE OF THE SACRED HEART
New York City, New York

DEDICATION

TO REVEREND MOTHER URSULA BENZIGER, R.S.C.J.

To Reverend Mother Benziger, Assistant General in Rome, we are proud to dedicate the Centenary issue of the Tower 1947. Long associated with Manhattanville as student, Warden, and Superior she has followed the growth of Manhattanville with interest and deep understanding. Her prayerful encouragement is valued by all who have known Manhattanville as she herself knew it for so many years. The best appreciation within our power is to try to express in our lives the ideals of self-sacrifice, loyalty to the Church and devotion to the Sacred Heart which Reverend Mother Benziger has taught.

THIRTY THOUSAND YESTERDAYS

This is the centenary year of Manhattanville College of the Sacred Heart. A century lies behind, a century—and other, unseen centuries,—lie ahead, but the future years, forging through new thoughts, experiments and conclusions, have behind them four generations of practical application, and twenty centuries of faith and knowledge.

It is not necessary to ennumerate the events of the last hundred years since the founding of our College in February of 1847, to mention the tragic fire of 1881, or the gradual growth of the campus, to speak of the development of Manhattanville into a college; it is not even of importance to list the many commemorating occasions of this present centennial year, beginning with the October pageant. What is of value, and what is Manhattanville, are not days marked on a calendar.

The days of our one hundred years are thirty thousand, yet their number is insignificant in contrast to the spirit that has been molded within them to form the traditions of the modern Catholic woman. The magnificent crusade of our late president, Mother Grace Dammann, in quest of a closer understanding among the races of the world has brought to our college a hatred of prejudice and a love of mankind. The aim of all of us, as fostered by the ambition of our President, Mother Eleanor O'Byrne, to unite the individual with world affairs through knowledge and participation has sharpened our perception of the vital part Catholicism must play in the search for world peace. The desire of the College to achieve this has ignited us with the determination to dominate our spheres of influence with the ideals of Catholicism.

Therefore, our pursuits of the next hundred years will be a continuation of those principles by which we have lived for the past century, motivated by a love of truth and a trust in God which cannot be shaken, and founded upon the ultimate security of the Catholic Church. We shall not explore the next thirty thousand days without the encouragement of past successes and the confidence of faith.

It is the beginning of a new century.

The Centenary

The Centenary celebrations of Manhattanville were formally opened by a program presented on Sunday, October the Twentieth, Nineteen Hundred Forty-Six. The Honorable Grover A. Whelan was Master of Ceremonies and the Welcoming Address was given by Regina O. Sherwood, Executive Chairman of the Alumnae Centenary Committee. Greetings were extended by His Eminence Francis Cardinal Spellman, Archbishop of New York; His Excellency, M. Henri Bonnet, Ambassador of France; The Honorable Thomas E. Dewey, Governor of the State of New York; The Honorable Robert E. Hannegan, Postmaster General; The Honorable William O'Dwyer, Mayor of the City of New York, was represented by Deputy Mayor Thomas Cochrane. The Centennial Pageant was then presented.

Manhattanville's Centenary

By HIS EMINENCE FRANCIS CARDINAL SPELLMAN

DAUGHTERS, Manhattanville looks back this day
Across a hundred years and, pleading, asks
That you look deep within the Sacred Heart,
The open door Longinus' spear once made,
And know that Love Eternal still invites
All souls who will to enter in and live:
The sinner to be cleansed, the saint to rest
And gain new strength nobly to die to self,
That Christ Our King may reign and be supreme
Within the mighty kingdom of a soul.
And each soul is a kingdom infinite—
For which, redemptively, the King has died;
Now daily dies in mystic sacrifice.

Dwell then, Daughters, close to the heart of Christ
Behold the crimson walls and sense the throb
And rhythmic beat of oceanic love.
Behold Christ's outstretched arms and list His words:
"Like to My Mother's, really is the grace
That I have offered you, and you have claimed,
For she of her virginity did mold
Maternity divine and gave Me flesh.
And you, her daughters, following her light,
Seeking a handmaid's grace, like her have found
Chaste motherhood in every soul you taught
To know and love My wounded, Sacred Heart.
Some souls are now in heaven at My throne,
As others yet will be. And I shall keep
You all within the heaven of My heart,
Eternally beyond time's ruthless touch."

Dear Daughters, in whom Mary's fruitfulness
Find mystical extension through the years,
Shepherd the lambs entrusted to your care
Protect them in the shelter of your hearts
And find in each His love requiting you.
And I, in His Most Sacred Name and Heart,
As shepherd of the shepherds that you are,
Bless you, thank you, and humbly share your joy.

On the Heights

On the heights so proudly standing
Strong against the blue,
High towers gleam commanding,
Loyal hearts beat true!
For Manhattanville sing proudly
Swell the mighty song!
'Til the echoes ring out loudly
All the ages long.

Left to Right—Ann O'Neill, Therese Coakley, Barbara Kyte, Jean Hoffman (President), Mary Fitzpatrick (Vice-President) Marie Smeallie, Jean Garside, Claire Carroll.

Student Government

Quiet strength and cheerful tact marked our leaders. In them each class and, more important, the entire college has realized its unity. True college spirit is the mark of every member of Student Government. Its spirit is as versatile as it is vital. In Student Government we find its personification. They are with us in the busiest corners of the campus: a quick smoke and a hand of bridge in the gym; ice cream in the tea house; the thrills and heart-breaks of spirited class games. We also followed them through long hours in the Brady Memorial and shared with them the dim light of the stacks; the enthusiasm of discussion groups and club meetings; the sincerity and depth of their spiritual values.

We can truly say that with Student Government we have prayed, worked and played. They shall ever be an inseparable part of our college memories.

Welfare

The work of the Welfare Council is difficult to put into words. The scope of its activity is too general to admit of definition. Wherever the student goes on campus, whatever she does, Welfare has a real interest be it a routine class, or an important extra-curricular activity. It is Welfare's task to preserve in the familiarity of student life high standards of taste and behavior. Working in equally close relationship with Student Government and the Faculty, Welfare coordinates all campus activities and through its weekly meetings keeps close contact between Faculty and the students. Welfare continually seeks one less hectic way of life. It aims to maintain peace amid the demands of scholastic and extra-curricular organizations. Recognizing the unlimited importance of quiet dignity, it helps fashion the Manhattanville girl into the Catholic Woman.

Children of Mary

In days when the world is looking for leaders who have the fundamental principles for right living, we at Manhattanville look to the Children of Mary who, by their dedication to Our Lady have promised to preserve the ideals of Christian Life. We turn to the members of the council with confidence and trust because by their actions they show us that they have a keen understanding of what they are doing and why. This understanding leads to a deep appreciation of the high standards of a true child of Mary. Through their loyalty shines a happy serenity which we are proud to claim as an example of something to be earnestly strived for.

Catholic Action

Taking the cue from its lively Chairman, Celia Morrell, Catholic Action has added its full program to the many activities of Centenary Year. Well aware of how vital a force Catholic Action can be, from experiences south of the border, Celia, with the aid of the Council, has endeavored to make "Action" the keynote of the work during the past year. Judging from the Nurses' Aides, Girl Scouts and Recreational leaders, Catechists, Mission Workers and Interracialists who each day gave of their time and talents on and off the campus, her efforts have met with success.

However the leaders in Catholic Action have striven, not only to secure one hundred per cent participation in the work here, but also to instill in the college an understanding of the true meaning and importance of Catholic Action in the life of the Church. It is not merely the contribution of time and effort which constitutes the program of Catholic Action here at Manhattanville, but also the awakening of the spirit of sacrifice and of real interest in the Lay Apostolate of the Church which must characterize the Catholic leaders of the future.

Choir

Those in the main building can testify that the Choir is up and singing when some are still in the first state of consciousness. With the least amount of preparation, on a minute's notice the faithful choir members will sing forth as if with a week's practice. "It may take three to do a Proper" but whether three or thirty the Choir can always be counted upon. Needless to say they always succeed with the help of Mother Morgan's untiring efforts and Oney's persistent enthusiasm. A vote of thanks to all.

Left to Right—Penelope Comper, Rosemary Roney (President), Ellen Hone.

Mary Becker (President), Isabel Hoffman, Virginia Durkin,
Mary Adelle Bernard.

Glee Club

When we look back upon our college days, it will not be to the hectic days of exam week, or to long term papers; but rather to those things which we have all loved and worked at together. Among our most pleasant memories will be that of the Glee Club.

We all love those days before Christmas vacation when we don blue jeans and decorate the gym for the Carol Concert. There are lights to be fixed, stands to be set up; but these are only the preliminaries to rehearsals, which come to a climax in the Concert itself. The Christmas spirit starts at Manhattanville in early November when we hear snatches of "Minuit Chretien" or a run from the Hallelujah chorus while passing the Assembly Hall of a Tuesday evening.

This however was just the beginning of a busy year for soon we started "Ruddigore." Memorizing the lines and solos followed and finally the Little Theater. The Bridesmaids practiced their entrances and Mad Margaret amazed us all. We were all a bit worried about our cues in the finale; but when the curtain fell and we heard the applause we realized that the Glee Club had scored another success. Mary Becker and Ibby Hoffman were warmly congratulated and as the audience left, we, behind the stage gave a hearty cheer for Mother Morgan which expressed our deep gratitude. She had helped us again to give a performance which we will look back on with joy and much pride.

Dramatic Club

Like everything else, the Dramatic Club gave its all to the Centenary year. Fall plans for inter-club plays were cancelled to give way in time and space to the production of the Pageant. But club life went on in other broader ways. Membership and interest was built with a series of lectures on a variety of subjects, Henry V, make-up, and lighting, to mention a few. The theatre party came back, so we saw Henry V and Cyrano de Bergerac. Then of course there was the constant chatter of the big production planned for spring. We welcomed with open arms, the charming enthusiasm and friendliness of Mrs. O'Connell. Mother Boyle, during the brief interval that we had her with us, brought us a vigor and inspiration that were reflected in the Townley Play. Then Mother Maguire inherited the key to the band-box and won our unwavering gratitude for keeping things in order. And Barbara Gilman kept golden peace in the hectic days that marked her reign. So through the year all the campus was a stage. We are glad that it was ours.

Mimi Marchev, Mary Beth Hughes, Barbara Gilman (President), Katherine Wilcox.

Peggy Couzens, Alice Farrell, Mary Fitzpatrick (President), Sally Gassert, Jane Crowley.

Debating Club

With a resounding rap of the gavel, the Debating Club came to order under Mary Fitzpatrick last September, and the "floor was opened" to a very full year of meetings.

With understanding and reluctance the Club had relinquished Mother Tenney who retains her position as "best friend of debating." Mother Parton generously and warmly assumed the moderator's work.

Slipping into the year with Centenary stride, the Club voted to cancel its annual public discussion in favor of the fall pageant. March, then, brought Debating's own contribution to one hundred years of Manhattanville Students, in the form of a Symposium on the National Student Organization.

With the lively support of Mother Parton and Mr. McClelland—the club's very special man behind the gun—Symposium, debates, discussions were opened correctly and closed successfully by Madame President Fitzpatrick and meeting was adjourned until the following year.

English Club

The atmosphere of spirited discussion is not restricted to the Debating Club. Thursday afternoon in the Lounge is apt to be as lively a session as any on the campus. English Club meetings are especially entertaining and informative, for the reason that they cover so many of the interests of the College as a whole. As an offering to Reverend Mother on her feast the Club turns suddenly dramatic and presents its interpretation of some particular aspect to which we all aspire. During Interracial Week the literature of various races is read and discussed in an attempt at deeper understanding and sympathy. As a result the Club is a symbol of the broad interests and activities that typify the College as a whole.

Randy Bowman, Jane Crowley, Joan Christie (President), Joan Fleming, Jean Ford, Ann Marie Brady.

Essay Board

What resident on the Heights has not at one time or another seen a member of the Essay Board a victim of "deadline delirium"? Somehow those contributions never came in quite soon enough despite Dini Ornstein's urgent pleas in Assembly. As a result the "Board" spent a rushed week-end amidst typewriters, widely scattered manuscripts, and coke bottles. But somehow, by hook or by crook, the finished product always appeared, an object of fond pride for Board and contributors alike, and a source of pleasure to the College.

Tower Board

The thought of putting out the Tower was awesome enough but realizing it was the Centenary issue we must admit we were more than awed—we were scared. What did we know about dummies, galleys, proof reading and all the things that somehow or other produce a year book? Our knowledge was scant but we were anxious to learn and in learning we were enlightened. Deadlines brought headaches but once met they were insignificant compared to the fun and excitement of seeing the book gradually enlarge from cover to cover and the mystery of a year book unraveled. The clue to the mystery was the cooperation and help of every one who volunteered assistance and those who gave moral support when it was needed. Now that it is finished we offer it to “47” hoping that it will after recall at least a few of the memories of “when I was in college.”

Seated—Joan Kirby (President), Miss Miller, Miss Farmer, Miss Holland, Isabel Casgrain. Standing—Noreen O'Connor, Sue O'Leary, Ellin O'Malley, Anne Heide.

Athletic Association

The shrill of a whistle, the whisp of a ball, and the flash of a white blazer tearing through the gym . . . but do we stir or trump our partner's ace? Of course not—it's just a member of A.A. in action again. And the A.A. is active regardless of the season; snow, wind, or hail, the show goes on. And always a good show, too, under the most capable and enthusiastic supervision of Miss Farmer. Right in the midst of every activity, not just on the sidelines directing the plays but out on the field where practice makes perfection, she has led and accelerated the spirit that is realized in the victory of a Manhattanville team.

Right beside Miss Farmer, playing referee when "our coach" plays guard, is Joan Kirby on hand with a point for our team and a laugh for the cause. The spirit that is represented in the A.A. members from each class is well guided under the scheduled events and "goings on" which keep the rest of us in voice for the cheering section. The gym buzzes with anticipation of big things. Miss Farmer's office droons with the chattering voices of the A.A. as the years events move on; and the college shouts with vigorous cheers for all their plans. To the Navy we say "thanks" for returning to the Manhattanville Faculty one of its best officers; and to Miss Farmer, we say "thanks" for coming back; to the A.A. we say "thanks" for keeping our limbs in tune with our laurels.

Freshmen Class History

We who hurried back to Manhattanville this fall to assume the duties of upper-classmen and ease the first strange weeks of our freshman class, found ourselves the proud sisters of an enthusiastic, happy group which was to add an extra note of jollity to sister-class undertakings. For such a class the job of "Junior-sistering" was easy. Not only did they prove themselves competent in the many jobs that traditionally fall the freshman bringing order out of chaos but they plunged into the thick of chairmoving on a Centenary scale and lent a willing if sometimes bewildered, shoulder to the year's great project. Their friendliness and cooperation with all our efforts, from Mother Farley to the youngest "infant" bade well for the three years to come when the "infants" of the hazing days become the leaders of Manhattanville!

Sophomore Class History

The Centenary year seems definitely to be a time of changes to which the Sophomores have contributed no small part. It hardly seems possible that our "beasts" could have been transformed so soon into the persuasive people who made the Second Floor a strictly sophomore domain. We must confess we're haunted by a picture of Manhattanville next year with Lower Deck hollow and resounding. It seems as if the forty-niner, like their forebears in the Klondike, have dug in to stay.

Then, too, this year we beheld a sight which underclassmen of a hundred years must have looked upon with amazement and yet with envy too—for on Reverend Mother's feast we saw one hundred and six blackclothed figures under mortarboards—the sophomores in caps and gowns.

Junior Class History

Somewhere over last summer we shed our childish whims and began to grow up. We realized that being a Junior meant being an upper classman and with Mother Byles' help we prepared ourselves for the promotion to cap and gown. We continued our record for solitaires, wedding-cakes and baby booties but all settled down to the serious business of living in a still shaking world. Bridge, movies and the mailbox were still daily attractions but we acquired more of an interest in U.N. and the activities of the national college students association. We made up our minds that the role of the "isolated punctum" was not to be ours and our junior year was not freckled with campuses. Lower Deck and Third Floor front were the scenes of our joys, hopes and disappointments of Junior year. No Saturday classes and Friday night visiting made us think we were in another world. We declared our theses with the usual Junior determination of "I'll write it this summer!" Could it be that we were almost Seniors?

Senior Class History

One of our earliest college memories is the song of '47. Hearing its promise to carry on the spirit of Manhattanville's one hundred years; watching the class that sang it; we knew, even then, that '47 was destined for "big things."

One year of underclassmen fun we shared with them; Laughing at the rollicking "Gay Nineties Review," enjoying our first postwar prom together, sharing in May the crowning happiness of the "Te Deum" on V-E Day.

Donning cap and gown in Junior Year, they folded about themselves the mantle of responsibility. The "Tower" was theirs to do or die over. They did, and beautifully too. Sporting a polished "social side," they presented the college to "Charlie's Aunt," which gave us an evening of fun we'll long remember. A well-handled Senior Week—Graduation—and then, full-fit and ready, a class Mother Morgan could well be proud of, . . . they were Seniors.

A summary of everything '47 has done? Impossible! Just a thoughtful goodbye from those who will miss you most.

No one word can ever adequately describe Mary Alice. She resembles a prism whose lights change with every move. We have watched her gazing off into space, coming in on the last two words of a conversation, at the same time making a grand slam. We have been amazed at her phenomenal memory for intricate road directions and a fund of miscellaneous facts. She is completely unpredictable; a mixture of dreamingness and drive, of independence and strong loyalties. But as the lights vary, the crystal itself remains the same: in every mood it is Mary Alice we remember.

Quick, capable and clever—but alive is the word that really typifies Jeanne. Her electric red hair and keen blue eyes seem to tingle with intelligence. Originality is her password; poetry her avocation. Her imagination sparkles in the Short Story class while lending a spontaneous charm to her parties. Blue is her color, with all it stands for, loyalty to friends, enthusiastic willingness and strong affections. Jeanne is a challenge to our abilities, for prophecies and serenades were no threat to her facile pen. To Jeanne's favorite expression, "I couldn't care less" we enthusiastically reply "we couldn't care more."

Bubbling laughter and animated loquacity can be only Nancy. Her eloquent gestures accent the story-teller personified who was forever filled with volumes of amusing fantastic yarns. We might also add that "the whole school is singing her songs," for when the tea-house resounds with music, it's usually a product of Nancy's vivid imagination. We see Nancy in excited superlatives plus animated enthusiasm, yet hers is a vivacity with a serious foundation. She is lovable and livable,—a realist with ideals. Perhaps—if it is possible to really "sum up" a person—this would be Nancy: ideas, ideals, and ingenuity.

Charm is a much abused word; people toss it off lightly and fail to realize as Barrie did "charm is sort of bloom on a woman. Some women, the few, have charm for all." Anne is one of the select few who possess a quiet but persuasive influence on all who come to know her. Blonde, dainty and fragile, Anne's appearance is reminiscent of the Christmas angels that gleam atop our trees each year. It is not surprising that Anne chose to major in English for her mind turns toward poetry and she finds writing no task. Beauty and brains are an age-old combination, but they never fail to delight—so it is natural that Anne delighted us.

Once in a while a guardian angel steers her way toward a group of people who have found themselves lacking in an indefinable yet needed quality. With the arrival of the "ward" as a charter member life takes on a new light with a glow that can't be dimmed. Nadia is our guardian angel. Nadia with her friendliness and interest in all the world and her nonchalant generosity for all the people of the world lends a touch of warmth and charm to all she does. We know that Nadia's love for people and unbounded energy will win her many new friends; yet because she's Nadia she won't forget the old ones.

It's sure to be a singing crowd when Mary's around. Music was her first love, never to be outgrown; if there was ever a voice we loved to hear over and over, it was hers. She can sing for her supper, magnificently, but then "Beck" could carol for a queen. An operetta, an unexpected crowd at home—even a concert presents no problem to Mary, whose quiet charm masters any situation with graceful ease. Hers is a gentle efficiency that never suggests the hurry or stress we all complain of, for the hardest things seem simplest when Mary lends a hand.

It was always a gay group that started up the Parkway with Mary at the wheel. It will always be a gay group that starts off, anytime, with Mary.

First and foremost, Betsy is a scientist, whether she's dissecting frogs, making slides, or guarding explosives in her room. Science holds no terrors for her. It merely supplies her with innumerable amusing stories to be told with straight face and a twinkle in her eye. Betsy is always racing to catch up with herself, for whatever she undertakes, she goes into with such gusto that twenty-four hours do not suffice for her day. Science marches forward, even after hours, for Betsy has blended lab and room, with a dash of knitting and Russian bank, and the tea room as a catalyst for it all.

Do you hear what seems to be a monologue down the hall? Doubtless someone is carrying on a conversation with Mary. But her oft-vanishing voice is Mary's only unsteady quality, for here is a person whose strength of character, based on the highest of principles, is ever an influence to those about her. Where Mary is, there you will find a job well done. On our campus we have an Irish pixie who hails from New York. Her dark hair and bright blue eyes make her a typical colleen while her roguish grin is so essentially Gaelic it could easily be a copy of the inimitable Leprechaun's. But fun-loving as she is, Ann Marie is a student par excellence. Her short stories are always ingenious and she is a master of characterization. The Dramatic Club has found her an indispensable member, while her dry sense of humor makes the tea-room ring with laughter. This talented Miss is, as well, one of the few people who can attain perpetual serenity.

Echoing laughter, bubbling into giggles, that end in a perpetual chuckle. Yes, its Mary Alice! With her laughing eyes and ever active humor, Mary Alice has won many a friend. She's the girl with something to say to everyone, and that something always counts. Whether discussing the economic crisis or the fundamentals of the tennis court, Mary Alice always adds just the right note of alertness and aliveness. Has Martha discovered the Ninety-third element? Perhaps not, but we listen fascinated as she describes the latest momentous experiment in the Lab. With a spark for the unexpected and ardor for the unusual, Martha has expounded her ceaseless energies in many fields, but always seeking perfection in everything. When "Jamie" appeared on the stage we knew that it had taken many hours of practice for perfection in the Scottish burr, just as we know that it takes many hours of Lab work to be a chemistry major. As unselfishness is a prerequisite for happiness, so is hard work for perfection. Martha has both.

Charming, lovable, laughable, Marnee has a "Shakespearian flair" for turning a phrase so that all who hear it remember it and unconsciously make it their own. Ask Marnee anything and the answer is always "shuah," but being a Bostonian we are not surprised. Perhaps we were just a little surprised, though, when Marnee suddenly came up with a grand "senior splurge" to become a star hockey player. But shinning through Marnee's picturesque speech and patter is her womanly intuition for practical judgments, and the courage to face facts and accept them that make her the Marnee we all love.

M.E. has restored our faith in the old legend of pretty, feminine nurses. Even though we sometimes have to look twice at a new hair-do, her vivacious manner and impromptu jokes are always a dead give-away. All through the gruelling ordeal of State Boards Mary retained those charming gifts and we took heart from her example. “Dris” was the streak of fame in the field of folly. She was the girl who made us sit up and take notice during hazing. There was deep thought in everything she did from hazing to choosing friends. Everything was done with an eye to the future—friends that would last, abstractions that could be realized, discussions that could mold good ideas and plays that would add up to a winning score for our side. Her enthusiasm and spirit were part of all her work—the smile she wore was deep-rooted in that very big heart of hers. “Dris” was for Manhattanville and Manhattanville will always be for “Dris.”

Dottie's complexion is reminiscent of a Pond's ad but we at Manhattanville know that her attributes are far from skin deep. We have found in her a rich sincerity and complete dependability. Her time is graciously allotted to others who find she loves a good laugh, is always a good listener and has the happy faculty of making you feel at ease. The ever heard "you take care of that" has asked a lot of Dottie but a person simple and genuine has always responded. Dottie's interests range from chicken farms to horse back riding with a generous portion of her ardor given to music. Our interests include a decided one in Dottie.

An endearing and challenging mixture of simplicity and complexities is our Kay. She has some simple solutions for all the world and will broach them and prove them well, without hesitation—witness the day some poor New York strikers were lectured on their duty to stop striking by an interested Kay. Yet complications seem her lot in personal life whether they arise from cuts needed, cars out of order, or week-end troubles. But Kay keeps right on unravelling, aided, as we often are, by her dry sense of humor, and always arrives at her goal. And we're sure she always will!

Alice is just another proof of the old saying about good things in small packages. Like the classics which engage so much of her attention, Alice has a wealth of knowledge hidden beneath a serene and well-composed surface, and a depth of understanding to be brought forth just at the proper moment. Our favorite adjectives for Alice are bound up in the classics, too—dependable, tranquil, sturdy—and humorous. For completion we add “poise” to our list. For action we invite you to Debating Club any evening when its Vice-President has the floor.

MAJOR: Mathematics — MINOR: Physics

Manhattanville saw in Mary her calmness of judgment, her straight-forward purpose and the integrity of her character and it chose her as its leader. Throughout the four years we have seen her contributing to every phase of college life. Her solution of problems is due to a combination of her mathematical ability and her clear logical reasoning. It is this characteristic and her diligence in seeking truth, that have made "Fitz" outstanding in debating. But it is as Vice-President of her class that we best know Mary. She has known and shown us the way with a quality of sincere friendship. In the tower the bell may chime more proudly, for Mary has stood on the heights.

Joan reminds us of a symphony because there is a rhythm to her ways. She manages to be leisurely in the midst of chaos, an enviable state of mind greatly sought after. Philosophically-bent Joan gets the marks we dream about without appearing to lift a finger. Her appearance is a delight and her flawless complexion occasions many a sigh from those less fortunate. She is one person who has the gift of being a good listener. You always enjoy a conversation with Joan because it is never one-sided—rather she stimulates you to talk by her appreciative attention.

To us Jane is the embodiment of a one-woman rebellion against superficiality. Her eyes can be on social reform with her hands still busy at bridge. "Charlie's Aunt" was but one manifestation of the fabulous Gallagher sense of comedy. She's a saleswoman all by herself—by virtue of her own personality. What she has to offer is a unique selection of qualities—a provocative mind, a glint in the eye that spells Irish determination. She has always been alive to life, and has inspired in others that singular awareness of people and situations. With a detached welcome for the world with its foibles and its profundities, Jane remains generous and genuine—an idealist and a sentimentalist—an independent thinker with an irreplaceable part in our hearts.

In the magic atmosphere of the "Little Theater," Barbara is at home. The followers of the Dramatic Club find her a generous task-master. "Come to the pageant practise," was Barbara's theme song for many a week and she deserved her share in the glory of the finished product. Who has not heard of the thesis clarifying faith and reason, once and for all? Winter-night discussions in the tea-house about life's weighty problems proved a source of many startling Gilman theories. Both dreamer and philosopher, Barbara views the world and draws conclusions concerning it that both astonish and delight us.

We see beauty in Dorothea, sincerity and devotion to duty. Behind that quiet dignity and reserve shines an ever generous spirit. Quickly sympathetic Dot is never too busy to help with a problem in the lab, or to lend a hand in the Art Studio. Her love of beauty has led her into widely diverse fields, where with the mind of a philosopher she seeks to find the causes of things, the ultimate truths. Some may wonder at the varied interests of biology and art, philosophy and art, but we are not surprised, because in beauty there is always harmony.

Joan has always fascinated us. We have found her ever changing but always charming hair styles, to be an expression of her infectious nature. If a color could describe personality we believe Joan would be a synthesis of richly blended gold. We have seen the gold of her tan against winter's white background, and we have comprehended the richness of her love, extended to all things at Manhattanville. In Joan the unobservant have found reserve, but her enveloping humor and deep social sense have been known and loved by the discerning.

Marie's abilities all seemed inexplicable until we discovered that she came from Ireland. Things were at last clarified. For we also discovered that the word fun is of Celtic origin. So is Marie and the two are synonymous. Marie's swimming fame is one of those things we all marvel at, applaud heartily, and know that we can never equal. And when we think of Marie we heave another sigh at the willowy grace of her figure, her femininity, and the sincerity in her smile which some have called a "gamin grin." Hazie's rendition of the "Charleston Butler" is a never-to-be-forgotten role, but then she herself belongs in the same class. Her contributions to these four years were tossed off with such a casual air that we would scarcely notice them were it not for such definite results of the artist, writer, linguist, and songbird all rolled into one, and that one so often adorned with a Nurses' Aide uniform that we recognize her practical side, too. Well no doubt 'tis true and we are very glad of it especially because in this case Herbermann also spells Anne and that is where we come in. We have all sighed enviously at the ease with which she does things—be it Math or knitting for innumerable nieces and nephews. For with no hint of the braggard she has confessed that a thesis on the theory of numbers was "really quite simple" and proved it by an A. With a necessary change of a pronoun, Anne, we are glad that "of you there are quite a few."

Unofficial Jester; born to be depended upon! In dramatics Adeline always played the “character” role; we were thoroughly exhausted from laughing at the pompous bachelor courting Charlie’s Aunt, to say nothing of our condition after watching “Justin” carefully measuring treads. In college life, there was no measure to what Adeline would do: from appealing for support for a needy missionary, to brewing tea for a winded varsity—she was a person without whom nothing was done. Yet she lightened every task with her stories, quips, and take-offs. It is always fun to have someone like Adeline around—such qualities cannot but speak of future success.

Womanliness is more than maturity of mind; it includes too greatness of heart. We turned to Jean because in looking for both, we found both. In her maturity we sought strength and perfection. In her greatness of heart we found charity and amiability. When there is fresh air to be breathed you'll never find Jean at the movies. When a "guardian angel" is needed the "big girl" will gladly help out. Like the lamp's steady glow has been Jean's balanced leadership, the wick trimmed by her sense of value, and her womanly dignity shining through the glass of crystal clarity. Our light must perforce pass on, but we who remain shall linger in its unforgotten radiance.

Impeccable in dress Mary Cornelia might have stepped from the cover of Mademoiselle's College Issue. Nor is her wardrobe all that is idealistically college—she herself is. The words Centenary and Mary Cornelia have become almost synonymous in our minds. She has given herself to this task with complete generosity, a generosity which has marked her college career. Singing in Madrigals, transporting Westchester-bound groups of '47ers in "Maud" the Ford, hysterical houseparties at Muckrose, all are evidence of this. To us Mary is the embodiment of the true definition of the word sophisticated—a person who is at home in the world because she looks skyward for goals.

A curious combination of sunshine and ebony, there is no ceiling on Helen's generosity. She epitomizes the ideal set for the Centenary year—leisurely calm. Under the veneer of seeming ease, everything is accomplished. Her calmness and serenity are rarely shattered. Relaxing is an art and Helen has it. Very little attention is paid to bridge when, fascinated, we hear Helen at the piano with "How Little We Know." An artist views the scenes of life with child-like clarity. Kathy is one of our artists, painting the beautiful things that we can only admire. On her canvas, she captures the beauty of a moon-clad tree, the startled expression of a frightened child, the magnetism of a young boy's smile—and those everyday sights seem new. These may have confounded many, but for Kathy it was a chance for achievement, a children's storybook written, illuminated and illustrated by hand. Joan, the little girl with the big heart and the energy to make all her dreams come true. Stirred neither by mild confusion nor mass hysteria is the pocket size edition of the harmony between aging youth and dawning maturity. Thought decides her actions, leading A. A. or guiding the Children of Mary. "Kirb" offers a warm heart, giving a helping hand when a finger would do, and showing forth love and earnestness to everyone and everything. For all those little jobs that must be done Joan answers, "I'd love to"; for those that have been done, "Oh, it was nothing." And for what lies ahead we say, "May your past be but a glimmer of your future!"

When you look into her merry brown eyes, you know that Connie is one of those people who will keep you laughing. Underneath her gaiety you see a depth of vision and you feel the warmth of kindness and good-fellowship. She can appreciate anything from Beethoven to Berlin, and you can count on her to give a detailed, play by play description with motions of one of the latest football games, or a howling rendition of the newest ballad. A good-natured master of repartee, with vigor amazing and harmonious dealings with others,—this has been Connie.

The old axiom about “tempus fugit” seems to have met its greatest obstacle in Ann—for though there never seems to be enough time for all we have to do, Ann manages always to have just those few spare minutes for all kinds of necessary things. With the time and a half given to the Catholic Action Committee, she still has time to spare for needy colleagues. And in that calm, soothing manner of hers, Ann has acquired many friends. Even when urging payments of C. A. dues, the duty has a way of becoming a pleasure, with “MacEach” behind it. For what she has to do, we know will be done well, and what Ann has done will always be remembered.

Eileen with the “laughing face” is our young cosmopolitan. Whether it’s of Russian, the latest opera, a Book of the Month Club selection, or life in a French university Eileen can converse with ease and skill. Arriving but one minute before the tower clock, she always manages to look as if she had just stepped from the cover of Mademoiselle instead of out of the crowded subway. A firm believer in the art of conversation she discusses all issues with clarity stemming from well established opinions, with a poise and control that make us all sit up and take notice.

MAJOR: History — MINOR: English

With a wave of her hand Jane became endeared to us at Manhattanville. It has been the casual gesture shot through with genuine friendliness that has made her such a likable person. Management is her key-note. Whether it's making a 9 o'clock Founders' class at 8:59, or sending one of her powerful drives over the tennis net, it's done with the least amount of effort and the maximum result of efficiency. This same spirit has transformed her Girl Scout Troop into one of St. Ignatius' finest. Let's hope that once Jane has gone into the ranks of alumnae she won't soon forget us, because it won't be easy for us to forget her.

Fun loving, easy-going Pat has a friendly smile for everyone on the campus. Her stories have made her a favorite, and her store of songs is reputedly limitless. In this direction she was a four year supporter of Glee Club. But boundless energy hasn't been confined to the campus alone and Monday afternoons found her hopping a Number 3 Convent for St. Ignatius Parish House where her Girl Scout meetings are said to have had a particular attraction. Pat's infallible sense of style corroborates the theory that New York is the fashion center of the world. With a smile on her lips, Pat's sparkling gaiety and her willingness to go out of her way to help will long be remembered here at Manhattanville.

E.F. is our mystery woman, is she a New Yorker or is she a Bostonian? That is the question. And a question that must remain unanswered. Tennis, sailing, or swimming at Hull in the summer and the "Boston Dance" in the winter would convince us that E.F.'s home was in Boston, but then weekends in Westchester make us less certain. But wherever she is you know that E.F. will be perfectly at home for she can gracefully take hold of any situation. Difficult circumstances quickly fall under the spell of her quiet determination and her ability to immediately grasp the important points of any problem.

The smiling Irish lass, from her bright red hair and elfin face to the fingertips of her dainty but capable hands, she personifies traditional Celtic characteristics, with a warmth of love and laughter, which is underscored by strength. This was the Betty we recognized and loved immediately when she returned from her nursing duties to Manhattanville last September. But since then fondness has grown with familiarity. We have discovered beneath daintiness, deep capabilities for service and study, and a fiery debater beneath laughter, serious devotedness to her profession. It was easy to know Betty and to know is to love.

But there is something else we shall never forget—that warm Spanish smile breaking into deep laughter, after some witty remark that had us all laughing, just as you had us all hypnotized with your Spanish rhythm: "Vamos, vamos, vamos a ver . . .," leading the carols, with a twinkle in your eye. But that twinkle didn't fool us, "Silly," because we know it comes from sincerity that marks with tenacity and unselfishness everything you do. We would never say that Neag had a repressed personality. The very walls of these buildings would crumble in protest, for they have been already weakened by too much irrepressible laughter; and we ourselves have learned what to expect when those dark eyes have a certain gleam, and that mischievous smile is especially broad. But personality, in the true sense of the word, is deep as well as attractive, and we can sense this in the reserve which Louise makes the boundary between her sparkle and what lies beneath. At any rate, we predict that Louise will not stand still in the world, but rather that her momentum will carry others forward with her, to the benefit of all concerned.

Virginia has endeared herself to the hearts of Manhattanville with her genuine interest in everybody, everything. Perhaps this is because of her love of music, music which has the power to “get at the core” of things, to bind all things together. This music we hear in Virginia’s silvery voice, together with her great calmness. Last minute papers, enormous “quizzes” were all in the run of things as she sat in the Day Hop’s Room quietly writing away. Virginia is an individualist, yet she goes beyond this individuality to everyone; for this reason she has made us here, happy, and will make others happy during her life.

As a senior, her hours on campus have been limited; practice-teaching sent her off early a few mornings each week, to say nothing of Mari's wedding when she disappeared for a few weeks altogether. On the campus "Oney" rarely relaxes in a free moment. You may catch a glimpse of her dashing down the hall with a Liber in her hand, or else she is checking lists for the Recreational Records. And “Mar’s” smile was the same, whether asking a favor of her or commenting on her “lush” Argyles. If it’s a heart that is true—or a girl never blue, then it’s Mary.

Molly is an artist, and we all recognize her as such. The ringing cry of "Molly we need a poster," will probably haunt her for many years, as our noisy and insistent tribute to her artistic talent. Typically, she spends long and painstaking hours on posters given to her at the last minute, because Molly is a perfectionist—she believes in giving her best—perhaps the result of her fiery Castilian blood, and strong devotion to the cause of art. But Molly is actor as well as artist. Whether striding across the stage, or mimicing impromptu, Molly achieves the dramatic effect—and we expect it. Most of all we love it.

MAJOR: English — MINOR: History

Madeleine's poetical appearance, highlighted by dreamy violet blue eyes has provoked numerous sighs of admiration. But we are constantly amazed by the energy that seethes behind such a fairy-like exterior. Madeleine's work for Catholic Action inspires us to follow her brilliant leadership, for she is constant and selfless in her attention to duty. Her quick wit and gift of laughter make her a sought after companion. The day hops had in Madeleine an intelligent and willing representative on Class Council, and the Glee Club found in her a staunch supporter. But most important of all, to whatever she does, Madeleine lends the friendly dignity that is so essentially a part of her nature.

Rosemary Thellusson E. de M.

780 Riverside Drive, New York, N. Y. — St. Catherine's Academy, New York, N. Y.
MAJOR: History — MINOR: English

Manhattanville takes great pride in her twins and Rosemary is the other half of the Thellusson combination. Rosemary is a Northern belle, Southern style. Her easy-going manner and soft melodious laugh remind one of old plantations and pleasant times beneath magnolia trees. But her active interest in English and excellence in that subject show that her mind has a true Yankee keenness. Her sense of fun and her eagerness to help make Rosemary a popular addition to any group. Both in appearance and manner, she is graceful with a certain dash of spirit that makes her completely irresistible.

Joan Watson E. de M.

47th and Pine Street, Philadelphia, Penna. — Convent of the Sacred Heart, Eden Hall, Torresdale, Penna. — MAJOR: Social Studies — MINOR: Education

"Sugar 'n spice 'n everything nice"—that's what Joan is made of (and we do mean everything nice when we think of her). Joan reminds us of a Dresden china doll and seems to us the model of poise and charm, which she displays as gracefully on the tennis court as at a tea. From the first day of her Freshman year, the sight of that spun-gold hair in any group has brightened the scene, for Joan is as sunny on the inside as on the outside. More than anything we will miss the sincerity and interest that Joan gives to one and all, with her quiet smile of encouragement. Is it any wonder then that there is no one who is not Joan's friend and no one who is not proud of it?

Catherine T. Wilcox E. de M.

"Woodview," Wawa, Penna. — Convent of the Sacred Heart, Overbrook, Penna.
MAJOR: History — MINOR: English

"Kee," as her name so well signifies, has been just that, fitting into and opening every heart at Manhattanville with her warm, friendly, and perpetual cooperation. The spirit that turns the lock prevails as class basketball captain and director of pre-curtain drama. Treading the silent hall in Junior year, and in Senior year as a thesis victim and well-qualified head usher, Kee's spirit never ceased. She could handle tricky scenery as calmly as a term paper, and somehow managed to stretch twenty-four clock hours into forty-eight work hours. What should be done, would be done, when Kee was to do it. The password to success—just Kee.

Mary Frances Wolfe E. de M.

107 Culver Road, Rochester, N. Y. — Academy of the Sacred Heart, Rochester, N. Y.
MAJOR: Chant — MINOR: Organ

To us she embodies the serenity of faith in a purpose. Add to this cool composure and a sunny disposition, plus an aimability and intelligence combined with an intrinsic ability to get things done. This is Mary Frances. Her practicality is attested by her sensitive realization of the responsibility of a college student, her scholastic endeavor and her vigor. Mary Frances has generously given of her musical talent to the Glee Club, singing forth in Choir, and ever supporting the seconds in Madrigals with spirit as well as voice.

Bessie Yanopoulos

1590 Amsterdam Avenue, New York, N. Y. — George Washington High School, New York, N. Y. — MAJOR: Philosophy — MINOR: History, Greek

What we first noticed about Bessie was her sincerity and “good sense.” This seemed reflected in her whole being, the depth and directness of her brown eyes, the swiftness of her speech. We admired her brilliance and loved her simplicity. Between acceleration and those heavy philosophy books, Bessie was always ready for a game of triple solitaire or to help someone “turn the heel.” What was so promising Freshman year, has burst into a round full flower. Gay and serious, cosmopolitan and domestic, Bessie is a real woman. As in Manhattanville, so outside, will she have many friends, for the spirit of friendliness, kindled by sincerity, emanates from her.
